THE INTELLIGENCER.

WHEELING, OCTOBER 14, 1897.

Result of Mrs. Atkinson's Trial.

The result of the trial of Mrs. G. W. Atkinson, the wife of the governor of this state, the progress of which has been watched with great interest by the public throughout the country, is gratifying to her hosts of friends in the state, although a more complete vindication at the hands of the jury was most heartily desired. As it is, the disagreement of the jury, with a majority in favor of acquittal, is a virtual vindication from a prosecution for forgery which seemed to thousands of people to be inspired largely by malice, and the Intelligencer believes that should another trial be had, Mrs. Atkinson's triumph would be complete. Public sympathy has been with her from the beginning of the proceedings, in view of the peculiar circumstances that surrounded the case and the conditions under which the indictment was brought.

It is unnecessary to discuss these things now, since it would involve a discussion of delicate matters in which the public has no concern. Suffice it to say that the Intelligencer believes it reflects the sentiment of the entire state in congratulating Mrs. Atkinson and her husband, who so faithfully stood by her in her trouble, that the effort to convict her of a crime for which she could have had no motive, has so far failed.

As the wife of the governor of West Virginia, Mrs. Atkinson has had the profound sympathy of the people of this state, and they have all felt a deep concern for her, from the day when the newspapers of the country announced her indictment in an interior county, on almost the very eve of her approaching marriage to the governor, until the present, and they will now rejoice with her and her husband that they have been spared the greater humiliation which might have been theirs.

Facts vs Campaign Falsehood.

The esteemed Register reproduces from the Cincinnati Enquirer, owned by John R. McLean, and the chief free silver organ of Ohio, a first class calumny howl, in which all sorts of fun is made of the business revival, and the statement is made that "we are no nearer prosperity than we were two years ago." The Register seems to think it is a good thing to flaunt this falsehood in the face of this community where the industries are working full time and labor is more generally employed than at any time in the past four years, and where business men are beginning to feel the good effects of the revival. Of course, the Enquirer's article is intended as a campaign document, but it will have no effect, because every man of intelligence knows that it misrepresents the situation.

If our neighbor will permit, we will suggest that all Popocratic organs are not indulging in these dishonest misrepresentations of business and industrial conditions. Our neighbor is very fond of quoting the editorial utterances of the New York Journal, the leading exponent of Bryanism in the east, and the only newspaper of importance in New York City that supported that cause last year. The Journal joined in the calumny howl until the conviction was forced upon it that prosperity had arrived. Now it is frankly admitting the truth. We commend to our neighbor the following article from the Journal as an off-set to the Enquirer's campaign howl:

"Real prosperity has at last struck New York. The laboring man knows all about it, for he has already begun to reap his harvest. There is employment now for nearly all, and though wages have not been greatly increased, pay envelopes are fatter, because artisans work six days a week instead of half time, as many did six months ago.

"It is estimated by labor statisticians, men who keep the track of the labor demand as closely as Wall street watches the market, that not over 5 per cent of the working class is now in idleness. Six months ago between 25 and 40 per cent of the toilers were out of work, and in the dead of winter probably every other man who depends upon his muscle to earn his livelihood was without employment.

"There were then nearly 100,000 dependent on friends or charity, or drawing their little savings to get bread for themselves and their families. To-day less than 10,000 in the Greater New York are out of work, and some of these are the shiftless classes, who would not work under any circumstances."

The Journal's statements are borne out by the reports of trade and industrial conditions from every section of the country, and what it says of the conditions in Greater New York is confirmed by all the other metropolitan papers, of all parties. The Enquirer is making a last desperate effort, a dying effort, for the sixteen to one cause in Ohio, and the Register doubtless copies it for consumption by its readers on the Ohio side of the river, regardless of the fact that the industrial communities of Delaire,

Bridgeport and Martin's Ferry are just at this time overhung by the smoke from furnace fires, day and night, and their mills are filled with busy workmen, steadily employed, and not working half time or not at all as they were before the revival came. It doesn't occur to our neighbor that among these people the vapors of John McLean's paper are creating some amusement.

Sound Sense From Boies.

We may now expect to see the Bryan organs denounce ex-Governor Boies, of Iowa, as a traitor to the sacred cause of the free coinage of silver at a dishonest ratio, because he has written a letter in which he says that "the Chicago platform has had its day in court before the tribunal of last resort." That is true, and the governor proceeds to give a rap in advance at those who may charge him with treason for this remark, and says: "Must Democrats, to be loyal, adhere to it forever? The objection is at variance with the whole theory of our form of government. If valid elections would settle nothing then majorities would cease to rule, and when a political issue was once joined the warfare over it would go on until one or the other of the parties to it was totally annihilated."

This is a gentle rebuke to the gentlemen who, in spite of the overwhelming rejection of the heresy last year by the people, and despite the disproof of every argument advanced in its support that nature and the revival of business has furnished, are still harping on the same old line. They are growing beautifully less in number, however, and there are many who, like Mr. Boies, who was one of the chief leaders of Bryanism last year, are accepting the situation and modifying their views in the light of the logic of events.

New York Campaign.

There are so many complications in the New York city campaign that it is impossible to forecast the result. Of the four principal tickets in the field it is possible for any one of them to win, and yet the parties are so badly divided and there are so many phases to be considered that no one can make a certain prediction as to which one it will be. Every day new phases develop and new complications arise.

Greater New York, or rather the territory now embraced in the city, cast 519,296 votes last fall, and the campaign managers of the four leading candidates, in their estimates of the result of the coming election, are dividing this vote as follows:

Tracy estimate—Tracy, 165,000; George, 135,000; Van Wyck, 134,000; Low, 111,000. George estimate—George 175,000; Low, 140,000; Tracy, 110,000; Van Wyck, 100,000. Van Wyck estimate—Van Wyck, 150,000; Tracy, 150,000; Low, 100,000; George 95,000.

Low estimate—Low, 160,000; George, 140,000; Van Wyck, 125,000; Tracy, 100,000. There you have it. Each candidate is elected in his campaign manager's mind and the reader is at liberty to take his choice.

Protected by Treaty.

Some thoughtless newspapers are speculating on probable remonstrances from Spain on account of the escape of Evangelina Cisneros from the Cuban prison and her flight to the United States. Their idea is that the incident might precipitate trouble between this country and Spain. This is nonsense. The girl was a political prisoner, the offense charged against her being enmity to the throne of Spain. All extradition treaties between countries exempt such refugees from their provisions. This is one of the established principles of international law.

The fact that an American newspaper man aided the girl to escape and brought her to this country, where she is now in the hands of friends, is not a matter which involves this government in any sense. Had the rescuer of the prisoner been caught in Cuba he would have been liable only to the local municipal law. Spain cannot make any claim for the delivery of the girl or her rescuer, and both are perfectly safe in this country. It is a principle which is observed by all countries that no government surrenders political or military refugees from another country.

The Daily New Dominion, Justin M. Kunkle editor, is a credit to Morgantown, its columns showing that the local and general news is pretty thoroughly covered. It deserves the support of its constituency and has the Intelligencer's hearty wishes that it may enjoy long life and prosperity. A few years ago nobody was dreaming of a daily paper at the seat of the University. Now it is no dream but a double reality, for there are two dailies published there. It is one of the evidences of the rapid growth and development which so many of the interior towns of the state are experiencing.

The inauguration of the new president of the State University was accompanied by appropriate ceremonies and under most auspicious circumstances. It was a great day for the University and a great day for Morgantown. It must also have been a proud day for Dr. Raymond, who was honored as West Virginia never honored a university president before.

The Parkersburgers who not long since bade farewell to the folks at home and started for the Klondike, are reported to be enroute home, having found it impossible to reach their destination this winter without undergoing great hardship and danger. They are far wiser than the many who insist upon pushing ahead regardless of the warnings from more experienced prospectors.

Governor Atkinson has just grounds for damage suits against some of the artists in the metropolitan papers. The alleged portraits of him that are going the rounds might be taken for pictures of anybody, from the Mikado of Japan to the Akkond of Swat, or the mayor of Snaketoot Hollow—anybody but our own handsome and chivalrous governor.

The Cincinnati Commercial Tribune suggests that the Ohio Democratic campaign committee could accumulate a big campaign fund by selling the kinesiograph privilege at its "harmony" meetings in Columbus.

A Spanish tax official in Cuba has embezzled a half million dollars. He had probably been reading the career of his chief, Captain General Weyler, who when he was governor general of the Philippine Islands, at a salary of $40,000 a year, managed in two or three years to accumulate a fortune estimated at $1,000,000. This seems to be a trait of Spanish official character, when placed under such circumstances.

When General Weyler returns to Spain he will, of course, take with him the equipment with which he won so many battles and dally "pacified" the island of Cuba. It will be no inconvenience for him to do this, since the type-writer will not take up much room in his trunk.

Likewise if America hadn't been discovered nobody would have been moved to regret its inferiority to the old world.—New York Tribune.

Autumn.

How beautiful the tree-shadows lie on
The paler green of the grasses!
October wind stirs them a little and
Cloud shadows sail above them and are gone.

The trees are like a golden fountain's spray,
Like golden waters raining.
When the October skies and ways are waning,
The trees alone have the heart to be gay.

Yet there's a blue sky, and the sun is gold,
A gold tree and a bird in it,
Aenny Wren or a belated linnet,
Singing away although all the nests are cold.

The tree upon the grass has a bird's shadow,
As the live tree its bird,
Shadow and substance joyfully praise the Lord,
As well as when the world was all a meadow.

Which is more beautiful, the living tree,
Or the tree's shadow shining,
Or the tree's shadow on the sward reclining?
I know not. Come and praise the Lord with me!

BLADDER TROUBLES.

The bladder was created for one purpose, namely a receptacle for the urine, and as such it is not liable to any form of disease except by one of two ways. The way is from imperfect action of the kidneys. The second way is from careless local treatment of other diseases.

SAMPLE SENT FREE.

Unhealthy urine from unhealthy kidneys is the chief cause of bladder troubles. It is comforting to know that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root will cure every wish in quickly curing bladder and urinary troubles. The mild and extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.
